Reviewed in the United States on April 26, 2004 Although this is the first and only electric shaver I've ever owned up til this item, I had been using a Gillette Sensor Excel and other razors since 1987, I won't go into too much detail since plenty of others have already done that. It really removes every little bit of hair from the unit. 8 Blades last at least year. I'm still on the first set I shave 23 times per week. Cons 1 Takes a lot longer to shave with than using a blade usually 5 or so minutes. You have to go over the same spots multiple times. Even then, some parts like my jawline feel scratchy no matter how many times I go over it. 2 Decently close shave, but not as close a blade. So stubble returns more quickly. Which in turn means you shave more often. Other times, you feel like you have to grind the thing into your face to really get a close shave. 3 Doesn't seem to cut longer whiskers that are lying flat. You can try refilling them on your own like a previous reviewer mentioned. I tried it and the results were not good. 7 Cleaning process is noisy. 8 Fragile. I've read that if you drop it once on a hard floor, it's history. 9 Expensive. As you can see, the Cons do outweigh the Pros. Hope this helps you make your own decision. Would I do it again. Most likely, no. When I travel, I still take a blade. It's lighter, cheaper, doesn't need recharging, and I won't care if it gets dropped, broken or stolen. Please try again later. I never felt the Norelco shaved as closely, and maybe that's why it was less irritating. Be that as it may, I recently switched to the new generation of selfcleaning Brauns and I am absolutely thrilled. By the way, the 7526 model is a good bit cheaper than the newer 7680, but lacks only its LCD display, which I find little use for personally. Please try again later. Please try again later. Matt 5.0 out of 5 stars While the razor doesn't get all the hair on one pass, I've never had trouble getting all the stubble off my face each morning.

When it broke, the battery on my 7516 held a charge for about 4045 minutes of shaving. So I'm expecting the 7526 to be no less inferior. I don't leave the base plugged in unless I need to use it. This has saved me money on cleaning packs and shaving heads. I do use a pre-shave lotion since my facial hair is thick. When I go travelling, the travel pouch is great because it will hold the razor, cleaning brush, and charging cord. I also like the automatic voltage detection of the charging cord for my travels to Europe and Asia. I had considered trying out a rotary razor such as those from Norelco. In the end, I decided that since the parts and pieces of my old 7516 are fully interchangeable with the new 7526, that I'd stick with the tried and true. Please try again later. Please try again later. Nathaniel Horn 5.0 out of 5 stars I've had this shaving system for around 8 mos. My biggest concern before buying believe it or not was speed. I started shaving my head around a year ago if you're going to go bald you might as well just do it! and that's a lot of territory to cover every dang'd morning. Well, it is about twice as fast as my old shavers. Seems to have slowed down a tad after a couple of mos., but maybe it's just a perception thing. The price of this shaver has come down substantially since I bought it also.. So there is very little reason to not get this great razor now except one, which with a little guile I have solved. Those cleaning cartridges are an unadulterated ripoff. But, guess what All they are is denatured alcohol and a little machine oil and fake lemon scent. Just take your spent cartridge, clean it out real well, being careful not to damage the nylon screen and let it dry. I just go outside and spray out the old whiskers and stuff with the hose. Pay a visit to your friendly local hardware store and get a small, cheap, ten-year supply of denatured alcohol. Drinking alcohol, if it's 100% pure would be even better but much more expensive.

All denatured alcohol is, is drinking alcohol with poison added so you can't get drunk on the cheap. Then add a teaspoon more or less of fine machine oil and fill the cartridge up to the level of a new one and voila problem solved. I use sewing machine oil because of its fine quality, which you can get at the you guessed it sewing machine or yardage stores. I haven't had any problem with this except don't be. It only gums things up. Besides the alcohol smells just fine. So, there you have it. I hope this helps. Have fun and knock yourselves out! Please try again later. Please try again later. Daniel J. Clingan 4.0 out of 5 stars I figured I would save money by not buying the cleaning solution. I went back to this one because I didn't find one that shaved as good. This razor shaves close. I'll pay for the solution because of the fact that you just put it in stand, turn it on and you're ready for your next shave with a clean shaver. When you turn on the cleaning unit it will be noisy in the beginning. Overall a good shaver. Can also be cleaned manually. Please try again later. Please try again later. maxaxam 5.0 out of 5 stars Always get a nice smooth shave and the self-cleaning solution is great for keeping your razor clean and the blade sharp. Please try again later. Please try again later. Charlie 3.0 out of 5 stars The latch breaks after a few months making the stand a pretty paperweight. Braun has tacitly acknowledged this design flaw by introducing the Activator model without a latch on the stand, using plain old gravity to hold the razor in. Unfortunately it may not last you much longer than the first. Please try again later. Please try again later. Mark 5.0 out of 5 stars I think they make this to last so they will have consumable blades, cleaner packs customers for life. Batteries still take a strong charge, and everything else works just fine. I just ordered a new set of blades, and considering the track record on this, I doubt it will be my last. Please try again later.

Please try again later. Luis M. Ceron 5.0 out of 5 stars I decided to purchase this one because of family recommendations. I have to say that this shaver works better than the Remington titanium that I own. I do not have irritated areas with the Braun than with the Remington. Please try again later. Please try again later. Steven Sloan 4.0 out of 5 stars It does not give as close a shave as a razor. But, for an electric it is pretty good a decent shave and a nice self-cleaning system. After 2 months I am still using it, but I could easily see going back to my regular razor. The main advantage over the manual razor is that I don't have to bother with washing and shaving cream. This is especially convenient if I want to shave in the afternoon to get rid of that 500 shadow for an evening out. If I had to do it again, I probably wouldn't buy it not much of an advantage over a blade. But since I have it, I use it. Please try again later. Please try again later. Edward Meiman 2.0 out of 5 stars I should not have put it in my carryon without wrapping it in something soft. Anyway, when I got home from a trip the switch fell off, then the piece under the switch fell out, and then, well it got messy. Unfortunately, it was the best shave I have ever gotten from an electric razor. However, if it can't take a little shoving around on a plane, well I'm avoiding Braun for awhile. Buzzer 3.0 out of 5 stars Imagine a shotgun mic or a paper towel tube with slots cut into the sides of it. The cutting edge is parallel to the foil. The original part was a series of thicker disks that cut perpendicular to the foil. Not sure if this will affect performance or durability, but just wanted to point this out. Some reviews indicated fitment issues. They're all in landfills now but my Braun still charges and runs for days. I spoke with your customer service rep who did his utmost to determine which would fit but I have now purchased three heads none of which fit. I think there must have been a misprint in the manual saying that a 32B was the one I needed. I also have purchased a 30B and one other none of which fit. I ended up purchasing another electric razor from you which works fine but I still have a perfectly good razor without a head. I have a call into Braun and hope they can help. I bought one about one year ago, but could not find any record of the seller in my list. So I purchased this set from a new seller. The foil and cutter fit well, and work with my old shaver. My only complaint is that nothing else came with the foil and cutter; specifically, the previous seller included the tiny brush that you use to pre-clean the foil and cutter before you put it into the electric cleaning device. The price was higher than the other seller's price. Since I could find no other seller for this needed item, I would buy from them again, but would like to see them at least include this small, impossible-to-find brush for their relatively high price.

But with the old blades now worn and taking too long to shave with, I decided to try the newer blade, and to my surprise, it cut very well. It was as close as my original blades when new and shave time is now much quicker. I haven't tried shaving with several days growth, but for daily use, it has done quite well. Overall I'm very satisfied with the purchase. Amazon's delivery time was also superior. It appears to be the way the cutting surface is manufactured now. Foil is good though. Extending the life of my shaver 10 years and counting. I used it for a while before I had enough. It seems as though the center piece that catches longer hairs is very rough and sharp and I'm not sure this one is a knockoff product looks like its original, incl. Braun is sending me a new one. I have a pestle and mortar, but it takes forever to grind the coriander as the husks just won't break down. I bought this after reading a review online that says it pulverises everything inc the dreaded coriander seed. So I thought I'd give it a try. Top job on everything I've tried so far. Loving the multiple grind dishes. It's great that they come with covers. Even better that everything is dishwasher proof. Also safe, in that you can't easily start it with the cover off. Well, you could hack it if you really wanted to but why! Finally, it's quiet compared to some other grinders. Very pleased with this purchase. Sorry, we failed to record your vote. Please try again To make sure I ordered the correct model I typed in Series 3 Braun 330 razor head and again this product came up so that sealed the deal. The order arrived quickly and I was eager to fit the head. I opened the packaging and immediately saw that the head was different to what my razor had. I looked on the Amazon page again and saw that it clearly shows that it should fit my razor but it did not. I emailed the company asking why it does not fit as their own page shows that it fits a Braun Series 3 330 razor.

They asked for the model number which I had no idea, as I thought it was a 330 I emailed them the model number and they stated that it would not fit my razor but they will exchange it for the correct one. I was and still am at a loss to understand how it won't fit my razor if their page clearly states it will fit a Series 3 330 Braun razor. Sadly I opened the packaging and now cannot get a refund. I HAVE WASTED 20 that I cannot get back. Sorry, we failed to record your vote. Please try again Sorry, we failed to record your vote. Please try again I ended up using the original foil for quite a lot longer than the recommended time after all it was still working. Reading some of the reviews, I was expecting some amazing difference with a new one, however it was just a little bit better. The construction of the cutter and foil is slightly different, it might appear as it is made in a cheaper way overall e.g. the cutter looks more like a pipe with cuts along it, whereas the original had the round cutting elements with a more robust moulded shape. Sorry, we failed to record your vote. Please try again Seems better than brand new as the cutter has a different design and is flatter with the cutting edges at the side of each rib, I assume giving it more cutting edges. The foil also has different size and shaped holes meaning it catches more hairs 1st time. My shaving takes a lot less time now with less irritation. Sorry, we failed to record your vote. Please try again Inexpensive and great value as will have one year use life. Compare that to cost of buying new blades for a decent wet shaver. Sorry, we failed to record your vote. Please try again I recently walked into a branch of a well known high street chemists, where I usually buy my shaving accessories, and I was quoted a price for this item which a few years ago would have procured for me a new electric shaver. Needless to say I walked out without making a purchase.

I knew I could purchase the very same item cheaper elsewhere, hence my order to Amazon thus saving almost 10. Sorry, we failed to record your vote. Please try again They are simple to

With a host of compelling features, the Series 5 appears to be a viable alternative to the more expensive Series 7 but without any significant tradeoffs in performance or build quality.

The 5090cc 5190cc is one the bestselling Series 5 models that has been getting quite a lot of attention for being basically a Series 7 on a budget. In order to find out if the hype around it is real, we have given the 5090cc the full ShaverCheck treatment and subjected it to a thorough testing. In this Braun Series 5 5090cc review we will take a close look at all the things that matter and see if the Series 5 line is up to the expectations. UPDATE the Series 5 5090cc is getting more difficult to find and was basically replaced by the 5190cc 5195cc, 5197cc model. The shaving performance is identical and apart from a few minor differences, they're basically the same. So this can very well be considered a Braun 5190cc review. Table of Contents Features overview Included accessories Build quality and ergonomics Battery life and charging Shaving performance Closeness of the shave Comfort How fast does it shave. Long hair trimmer How does it compare to the Series 7 Cleaning and maintenance Manual cleaning Automatic cleaning Replacement parts availability Wrapup — Who should buy it. Alternative shavers Features overview 3 blade shaving system The Braun Series 5 5090cc is a three blade foil shaver suitable for dry only use. The more recent Series 5 models like the 5190cc, 5195cc or 5197cc can be used wet or dry. All of them are however waterproof and can be cleaned with water. The shaving head configuration is typical Braun and features two outer foils with the trademark octagonal perforations and one middle trimmer. The outer foils catch and cut short stubble close to the skin, while the middle cutter, called the ActiLift Trimmer, captures longer, flatlying hairs that grow in different directions. Flexing shaving head The three cutting elements can move independently to maintain constant contact with the skin, regardless of the area that's being shaved. Braun calls this FlexMotionTec with MicroMotion.

Apart from that, the whole shaving head pivots to further improve the contact between the cutting elements and the different contours of the face. The pretentious term used in this case is FlexMotionTec with MacroMotion. MultiHeadLock The head of the Series 5 can also be locked into place when more precision is needed. This is carried out via the head locking switch located on the front of the shaver, just below the shaving head. There are 5 predetermined positions for locking the shaving head and you can go through them by simply pushing the head into a different one without any damage to the ratcheting mechanism. This is a major improvement over the locking mechanism of the Series 7 that would simply break when you applied more pressure. In the two extreme positions, the middle trimmer and one of the two foils are also retracted, so you end up with just one of the foils protruding, very handy for shaving tricky areas like under your nose. Long hair trimmer On the back of the Series 5 you'll find a long hair trimmer, similar to the ones used on the Series 3 and Series 9. When fully extended, it just about passes the shaving head so you can sort of see what you are doing. The station uses an alcoholbased solution and takes care of cleaning, lubricating and charging your Series 5 shaver. We'll cover the station in great detail later into the review. Corded or cordless use 5090cc The 5090cc is equipped with a LiIon battery that should provide 45 minutes of cordless use. Since this shaver is suitable for dry use only, you can also shave while it is plugged in. You can charge the shaver via the station or by plugging the included cord directly into the shaver. Braun Series 5 5190cc See the price on Amazon While the 5090cc in our review is waterproof and can be safely rinsed under water, you cannot use it in the shower or with shaving cream or gel.

Other noteworthy features of the Series 5 5090cc include a 5 level battery indicator, hygiene status, 5minute quick charge option and a travel lock. I would have liked to see those included, but for the price of the 5090cc, it's not too bad I particularly like the hard travel case that offers far better protection in case of mechanical shocks compared to the flimsy faux leather pouches used by Panasonic for example. Unfortunately there's no room for the charging cord inside the case. It's also interesting to note that other Series 5 models come with different accessories. For example, the 5090cc reviewed here is the only Series 5 that comes with a hard travel case. All the other ones include a soft pouch or none at all. The newer models like the 5190cc also come with a plastic protective cap. For a complete overview of all the Series 5 models and their differences, you can check out our detailed comparison. Build quality and ergonomics Braun's Series 5 sits right between the Series 3 and the Series 7. However, if we consider the overall quality and performance, it is a whole lot closer to the Series 7. To back this up, the Series 5 is made in Germany, just like the more premium Series 7 and 9. The entrylevel Series 3 is made in China. One interesting thing is that only the shaver is made in Germany. The cleaning cartridge is made in Ireland, the cleaning station is made in Hungary, while the charging cord, cleaning brush and travel case are made in China. The Series 5 5090cc 5190cc is made entirely out of plastic, with both glossy and matte treatments. The color scheme of our review unit looks quite striking with the black and red combination. The back of the shaver is pretty plain. There is a generous, textured rubber insert that extends to the sides and provides an excellent grip even when your hands are wet. The same rubberized material covers most of the long hair trimmer as well.

You can also see the two metal studs that come into contact with two metal plates inside the cleaning station. It's got a considerable girth and looks very beefy. However, it is lightweight and feels well balanced. It's also quite similar to the rangetopping Series 9 in terms of design language and proportions. Braun Series 9 vs Series 5. The backside of the two looks almost identical 5090cc to the left, 9290cc to the right Braun Series 5 5090cc left and Braun Series 9 9290cc right. The overall build quality of the Series 5 is very good, with no visible defects or unsightly gaps between the various surfaces. The glossy black does show smudges and fingerprints and it probably scratches easily, so you'll have to be careful with it. The shaving head looks and feels of high quality and snaps securely in place. It also pops out easily when you need to clean it manually. With only 3 cutting elements, it's also quite slim and very easy to maneuver in tight spots, especially when compared to a 5 blade Panasonic Arc 5 behemoth. Braun Series 5 cassette The simple and clear LED display is very practical and a definite improvement over the oddly placed and dim display of the Series 7. It shows the battery level, when you need to clean the shaver or when the travel lock is activated. Actually it's not the noise itself, but the vibrations. They are really strong and you can definitely feel them in your hand and on your face when using the shaver. A Series 7 is much more refined in this regard. I didn't find the vibrations to affect the quality of my shave, but I definitely couldn't ignore them. Overall, I must say that I am very pleased with the build quality, looks and ergonomics of the 5090cc. Battery life and charging The 5090cc comes with a LiIon battery that provides up to 45 minutes of cordless shaving time. I found this claim to be pretty accurate and it even slightly surpassed these numbers during my time with the shaver.

The newer 5190cc is rated for 50 minutes of use, so that one should be even better. It takes around 60 minutes for the battery to fully charge and you can achieve this by plugging the cord directly into the shaver or by placing it into the cleaning base that also charges the shaver. There's also a 5-minute quick charge option that should provide just enough power to complete one shaving session. The LED display is very straightforward, with 5 bars that indicate the charge status of the battery. The 5090cc is the only Series 5 with a 5-level battery indicator, the rest of them having a 3-level display or even 2 5040s. There is also a low charge light that will start blinking when the battery is running low. When this happens you should be able to complete your shave with the remaining charge.

Shaving performance And now let's get to the most important part of the review, the actual shaving performance. I used the Series 5 5090cc exclusively for 3 weeks, shaving daily and every other day for the most part. I didn't shave on weekends just to see how it would deal with a longer beard on a Monday morning when you probably want to get it over with as fast as possible.

Closeness of the shave When it comes strictly to the closeness of the shave, the 5190cc and the Series 5 in general is pretty good. It's not the closest shaving electric razor in this price category — that title goes to the Panasonic Arc 4 — but most men will probably be satisfied with the results. To me the Series 5 is on par with the Series 7 in this regard, even though it lacks some of its trademark features, like the sensitivity settings or the micropulsations technology. In real life use, they don't seem to make any significant difference. With that said, if you have a very fast beard growth, you could see a 5 o'clock shadow creep up sooner than you would like. If that sounds like you, then a Panasonic Arc 4 would probably be a better choice for pretty much the same money.
